OBITUARIES

Mrs. Jennie M. Harrington, of Indianapolis, died at her home November 2d after a short illness. Mrs. Harrington is believed to have been the first woman attorney to practice in Indiana. After her graduation from Butler University, then Northwestern Christian University, she was an associate in the office of Aquilla Jones.

Robert Dalton, 944 North LaSalle Street, Indianapolis, died Tuesday, October 31st, at the St. Francis Hospital at Beech Grove. Mr. Dalton had practiced law in Indianapolis for twenty-three years, the last ten of which he was associated with William J. Fahey in the Hume-Mansur Building. He was a graduate of Valparaiso University.

H. N. Seymour Home, of South Bend, died at his home Tuesday, October 11th. Mr. Home was a native of London, England, and came to South Bend in 1895. He served as a court reporter for 23 years under Judge Walter Funk and one year under Judge Cyrus E. Pattee.

Ralph Hill Spaugh, of Columbus, Indiana, died at his home October 19th. He graduated from Indiana University in 1896 and from the Indiana Law School at Indianapolis in 1898. He was in partnership with Judge Hacker until 1904, and then was associated with Judge John W. Donaker until 1916 when he formed a partnership with his brother, Walter Spaugh.
